WELCOMHOTEL PORT BLAIR

OVERVIEW

There's a rather endearing image that comes to mind when one thinks of island life - vast seas, sandy beaches, blue skies and blissful tranquillity. The Andaman and Nicobar Islands, in particular, have captivated leisure travellers year-after-year. Awe-inspiring architectural monuments, pristine beaches, palm-lined shores and some of the finest diving and snorkelling options in Asia are just a few of the many reasons travellers find bliss in Port Blair.

Drawing inspiration from picture-perfect surroundings and local culture, Welcomhotel Port Blair celebrates the quintessential island life, the rawness of untouched forests, carefreeness of island spirit and beauty of indigenous architecture. Built on a hill and designed by the famed architect, late Charles Correa, the hotel overlooks lush greenery and pristine blue waters of the Bay of Bengal. With large overhanging roofs and a series of decks that cascade down the hillside, the hotel was built in 1981 using indigenous materials such as local timber called Pedauk. The hotel has now been revamped, all the while reflecting the native life of the Islands. Boats passing by, colourful rainbows, lush islands dotting the horizon of an unending ocean – there's much to be discovered each day, including exquisite escapades spanning culture, adventure, art and gastronomy.

Through scrumptious coastal cuisine, delightful artistry, joyful island experiences and warm hospitality, Welcomhotel Port Blair looks forward to offering a meaningful stay on this stunning island in the Indian ocean.
